Of the many celebrations held in the month of February (National Grapefruit month, National Pistachio Day on the 26th, etc.), undoubtedly one of the best-known is Presidents' Day. It is fitting that we take time each year to honor those who have led our country; only forty-three individuals have filled that role so far in our nation's existence. History (and/or our personal political proclivities) may dissuade us from venerating some of these men, yet in the final analysis, I think we can be appreciative of the sacrifices they each have made, and the difficult challenges they face in serving as leaders of the free world.

Over the course of a presidency, a president has ample time to ruminate, write, and speak about the job. We should perhaps consider ourselves fortunate that because of their elevated positions, people have seen fit to preserve these thoughts for posterity. As I scanned the Internet for presidential quotes, a few stood out for me as particularly insightful and inspirational. Many of our presidents had something to say about the often-daunting task of leadership. Lyndon Johnson noted, "A president's hardest task is not to do what is right, but to know what is right." Theodore Roosevelt said, "The only man who makes no mistake is the man who does nothing." Part of leadership—if not part of generalized human existence—exists in this struggle to know the right thing to say and do. But we are going to make mistakes, and being able to own up to (and grow from) these errors is also important. For my part, I hope that any decision I make in my work within this congregation will be for the ultimate benefit of the congregation. And if you ever feel that I have erred in any way, I hope that you will appreciate that my words and actions are undertaken with the best of intentions. As Bill Clinton noted, "If you live long enough, you'll make mistakes. But if you learn from them, you'll be a better person. It's how you handle adversity, not how it affects you. The main thing is never quit, never quit, never quit."

Our nation's 43 presidents can also impel us to be aspirational. A young person growing up in the United States today can dream of achieving great things. Perhaps someday he or she will even hold our nation's highest office. President Woodrow Wilson taught, "We grow great by dreams. All big [people] are dreamers." President Franklin Delano Roosevelt opined, "Happiness lies in the joy of achievement and the thrill of creative effort." We should continue to encourage our young people (and indeed, all people) to use their imaginations and explore the world around them. Our liturgy teaches that God renews the Divine work of creation on a daily basis; so too should we find outlets that nurture our creativity and provide us room for its expression.

Lastly, our nation's presidents try to use their leadership to build a brighter future for our nation. Thomas Jefferson embraced this through westward expansion; John F. Kennedy dreamed of exploration of the moon and beyond. More recently, Barack Obama has said, "We did not come to fear the future. We came here to shape it." In Judaism, we reflect this value in the principle of L'dor VaDor, from generation to generation. We seek to leave a firm foundation and meaningful legacy so that our children and grandchildren may build upon it, and create a strong and vibrant Judaism well into the future.

Whichever of our presidents you find most inspiring, I think we can agree that many of our American values which they pledge to uphold are echoed in our Jewish values. May we forever be grateful to live in a land wherein our religious principles can stand in concert with the American principles of freedom and equality.

I wish you all a meaningful Presidents' Day, and a very happy February.

B'Shalom,

Rabbi Alan Cook

People in the News

Gene Robinson, the director of the Carl R. Woese Institute for Genomic Biology at the U of I was featured in the "Getting Personal" section of the News-Gazette on Sunday, January 3. To read the article you can go to: <http://www.news-gazette.com/living/2016-01-03/getting-personal-gene-robinson.html>.

Janet LeRoy, president of the Rebounders fan club had the privilege, along with Lou Henson, of presenting Dee Brown an orange blazer to wear while he's on the job as special assistant to the athletic director. Birthday & Anniversary Blessings

If you celebrate a birthday or anniversary in February, please join us at our services on Friday, February 12th, at 7:30 PM. Rabbi Alan will invite all those marking a milestone to join him on the bimah for a special blessing. After the service, we will enjoy treats at the Oneg in your honor! No RSVP is necessary to participate!

Well, it's February! By now you have probably gotten back into your normal every day routines. The kids are back at school during the day, extracurricular activities are happening, and work is in full swing. By now, most of the New Year's resolutions have probably been broken or are about to be broken. Hebrew school and Religious school have also started up again after an even longer break. Life is settling back down to "normal."

Despite this nice comfortable feeling of normal; I am going to remind you about some of the opportunities that are available to do something that you may not be part of your "normal." Additionally, as Dawn Blackman reminded us during our Shabbat Service remembering Dr. Martin Luther King, a question that we should start out every day with is "What am I going to do for someone else today?"

Did you know that Rabbi Alan has started up the News and Nosh events again (watch the bulletin for more details on when and where)?

Have you attended an Adult Education session lately? Join them for "Sacred Conversation about Death". These sessions seek to break through the taboos and explore the sacredness of how we think about and talk about our final days. This is not intended as grief therapy, but an opportunity to learn about Jewish approaches to these issues.

Are you interested in discussing the Talmud? Each week the Religious School is in session, join Rabbi Alan and others for an overview of the history and composition of the Talmud, and an exploration of key Talmudic passages.

Have you volunteered to help with an Oneg? You can check the oneg host schedule at Lisa.Sherrin@gmail.com and contacting Diane Ore to schedule an oneg.

Are you interested in helping out at the gift shop? Give Natalie Frankenberg a call at 390-4168.

Can you help with the Purim Baskets? Give Rabbi Jody or Tonya Bernstein a call.

Have you volunteered for a committee? There are a number that could use your help. Please see the list of committees on our website at:

<http://www.sinaitemplecu.org/index.php/about-us/committees>

I conclude by reminding everyone of Rabbi Alan's challenge (the "Art Robinson Invitational") to find ways to volunteer within the community as a tribute to Art's memory.

Sinai Temple Board of Trustees Mtg: January 11, 2016

☆ Membership: We have received one application for membership from Nikolai and Natalya Matatov. Motion to approve their application was made by Art Siegel, 2nd by Amy Wolff. All in Favor.

☆ Financial Report and Pledge Update: Profit and Loss Budget Performance through December 2015 was passed around. Income and Membership are higher than last year. Expenses are on track but building and grounds are higher than budgeted for this point in the year. The balance sheet was also passed around and reviewed. We are doing well but our investments have gone down in value, in general, because the stock market has gone down in value.

The Board must annually review our Investment Policy. There was discussion about the policy including the differences between endowment and obligated funds, the goals of each and asset distributions.

☆ Motion to accept the Investment Policy with the addition of: "The building fund should be invested so as to preserve its value in real terms." Made by Julia Robinson, 2nd by Art. Discussion followed. All in favor.

There was discussion to upgrade our security system which would include alarms in the Davis Chapel and panic buttons. There would be a monthly savings on service due to elimination of 2 phone line, but a one-time $4,000 charge for equipment/setup. Motion was made by Amy, 2nd by Randy Rosenbaum to accept the Finance Committee recommendation (to include investigating grant money to pay for this) to pay F. E. Moran up to $4,000 to revamp the hardware for the alarm system and make changes to appropriate phone lines. If no grants are available, this would come from building fund. All in Favor.

☆ Religious School - The Religious Education Committee has been calling school families. Comments about the school were overwhelmingly positive. Two issues had to do with the length of the school day and the length of the break between semesters. Rabbi Jody and the Committee have already discussed ways to address these concerns. The Religious Ed Committee has also been discussing ways to revamp Hebrew High and Confirmation programs to enhance the experience for the students.

CUTY CORNER

CUTY got into the winter spirit early in the new year with a trip to the UIUC ice arena for some ice skating. We braved the crowds on the ice rink then warmed up with hot cocoa, yum! Currently, we are planning the most anticipated event of the year: the lock-in at Sinai Temple. We are getting ready for a night full of games, movies, snacks and maybe even some sleep? CUTY members have asked to watch the movie "Mean Girls," which happens to be a favorite of ours too. Sardines is on the list of games to play, but thankfully not on the menu for dinner, which will be a feast of vegetarian lasagna, garlic bread, and a mixed salad. Don't forget you can find the details of upcoming events at cutempleyouth.weebly.com, or you can email sinaitempleyouth@gmail.com to get on our regular email list.
