Please RSVP to <https://sinaicu.wufoo.com/forms/sinai-temple-bbq-and-havdalah/> so that we can have enough supplies for everyone.

There is NO COST for this event!

As summer approaches, many of us are thinking about those seasonal activities that can only be enjoyed as the weather gets warmer: gardening, walking outdoors, swimming, and so forth. For my family, we also look forward to our time at summer camp. Rabbi Jody and I are fortunate to be in a field that allows us to spend time at camp, even as adults. Gabe began coming with us to summer camp when he was less than two years old; Orli has been at camp each summer of her life, and Eden is now poised to follow in that tradition.

We are proud that so many students from Sinai Temple attend Jewish overnight camps. A large contingent goes to Olin-Sang-Ruby Union Institute (OSRUI) in Wisconsin, where Rabbi Jody and I will each be spending two weeks on faculty. Our students also attend other camps throughout the region and all around the country. The specifics of the programs may vary from camp to camp (and perhaps even change from one summer to the next), but I appreciate how camp builds creativity and helps young people to develop broad skill sets.

A recent article in the Washington Post celebrated this fringe benefit of the camping experience. The author, Laura Clydesdale, notes that there is an increasing drive amongst her neighbors to have children spend summer in academic preparations or résumé-building activities. But she cites a number of experts who have written that, in the changing workforce environment, there will be an increasing need for creativity and innovation. Steve Jobs is quoted as having said, “Creativity is just connecting things,” referring to how people become inventive when they are called upon to draw connections between their life experiences. More varied experiences equal a greater number of connections, which in turn leads to more capacity for innovation.

When children head off to summer camp and face the challenge of sharing living space with eight to twelve other young people in the close quarters of a tent or cabin; when they dare to attempt scaling a fifty-foot climbing tower, or riding a horse, or waterskiing; when they encounter foods that aren’t served to them at home; when they attempt to learn the words to “The MTA Song,” or “If I Had A Hammer,” or “You’ve Got a Friend,” or when they explore new ways to define their Jewish identity, they are broadening their horizons and building resiliency for the future.

Clydesdale quotes from a book called “Homesick and Happy,” by Michael Thompson. Thompson writes, “... there are things that, as a parent, you cannot do for your children, as much as you might wish to. You cannot make them happy; you cannot give them self-esteem and confidence; you cannot pick friends for them and micro-manage their social lives; and finally you cannot give them independence. The only way children can grow into independence is to have their parents open the door and let them walk out. That’s what makes camp such a life-changing experience for children.”

We are fortunate in our community to have a wide range of summer camp options from which to choose. We are also fortunate each year to be able to work with CUJF to offer financial assistance in an effort to help make the camp experience more affordable for families.

If your child is attending a Jewish overnight camp this summer, we hope that s/he has a fabulous experience (be sure to let us know his/her camp address, so that we can send a special treat!). If you are interested in exploring what possibilities might be right for your child in a future summer, please speak with Rabbi Jody or me. And if you’re just slightly beyond summer camp age, you can still enjoy the camp experience vicariously by watching for updates about all of the adventures our Sinai Temple campers are having.

B’shalom,

Rabbi Alan Cook

The month of May can be an emotional time for many in our community. During the month of May this year, we remembered the Holocaust and those who lost lives to protect Israel; as well as celebrated the Israeli Declaration of Independence. We also celebrated a Bat Mitzvah and many attended the Sinai Temple Ice Cream Social and Annual Meeting.

For many families, May is also a time of graduation as "our babies grow up" and possibly send them off to overnight camp. Whether it is a B'nai Mitzvah, a grade level graduation, changing of schools, or going off "into the real world", we marvel at how much our children have grown (either physically or in maturity). In some cases, long-standing members of our community plan to move away as work takes them to new locations. We wish them a hearty Mazel Tov, even as we know that we will miss them greatly.

At the annual meeting we thanked those board members whose terms have expired. I wish thank to Jennie France, Toni Lachman, Dan Epstein, Sanford Hess and Judy Kaplan for their hard work, their thoughtful consideration of the issues and their insights and guidance they provided to Sinai Temple. We also welcomed to the board new / returning members: Andrea Aguiar, Toni Lachman, Bob Eisenstein, Dan Kopolow and Linda Weiner. Serving on the Sinai Temple board is both a mitzvah and a sacred trust. The synagogue thrives because of congregants who volunteer their talents, time and energy. I look forward to working with this new and dedicated board next year.

During the month of June, the board will meet as a whole to discuss the business of Sinai Temple. I also plan to meet with the incoming board members as a group as a way to provide background and introduction to current board topics. Even though we do not meet in July, as per Temple by-laws, there will still be plenty to do and plenty happening at Sinai Temple. As our focus turns to the Fall, the board and committees will begin planning social events, fundraisers and the High Holiday services. If you have an interest in any of our committees (see the list on our website at <http://sinaitemplecu.org>) or need help finding a committee that can use your help, please feel free to reach out to either Rabbi Alan or myself. Many hands make for light work, and we can always use your help. Every bit of help is appreciated and is needed.

Please remember to keep your friends at Sinai Temple in your plans for the summer. We will continue to have our normal schedule of services and there are opportunities to celebrate several B'nai Mitzvah. In addition, the library is available for use and our office is open throughout the summer if you need anything from either Rabbi Alan or Rabbi Jody. Our gift shop is also open by appointment. We look forward to seeing you through out the summer and the rest of the year.

Bulletin Submission: The deadline for the August Bulletin is July 15th. All submissions may be edited for length and content. EMAIL submissions to: Kathy Douglas stoffice@sinaitemplecu.org.

In the Torah, we learn that it took God seven days to create the world. God worked, adding trees and plants, fish and birds, people and animals, for six of these days and then, on the seventh, God rested. There was Shabbat. For thousands of years, people have been interpreting the meaning of the Torah. Rabbis try to explain the meaning of stories, verses, words and sometimes even individual letters. Shabbat may mean that you don't drive in a car, that you don't spend money, that you attend services, that you eat particular foods. While our interpretations may differ, there is a common understanding that Shabbat is a sacred time when we take a some sort of break from our regular activities.

Right now, we have a shabbat, a rest, from school. Hebrew and Religious School ended last month and secular schools are on break (or will be shortly). We are resting from the routine that we have had for the past 10 months—waking up at a certain time, getting dressed, packing lunches, doing homework, after school activities, dinner, etc. Days may be filled with summer camp or swimming. There may be opportunities for pajama mornings, later bed times, screen time, and bike riding. In general, the summer months tend to be less structured for families with children, providing a necessary shabbat. Just as we have an obligation to observe and remember the holiday of Shabbat by making a distinction between Shabbat and the regular week, the holy and the mundane, we also have an obligation to make summer vacation a sacred time.

The Rabbis teach, "Al shloshe devarim ha-olam omed. Al haTorah, al haAvoda v'al g'milut chasadim." The world stands on three things. On Torah (learning), on Avodah (doing) and on G'milut Chasadim (kindness). Over the summer, try to find time to focus on these three things that make the world stand. Try to find a way to make the break from school more than just a time of rest. Make this time a sacred time. I hope that YOU will respond to my challenge to

1. Learn something new,
2. Do something Jewish and
3. Do something to make the world a better place.

Send Rabbi Jody an email, pictures or a letter to share your acts and you will be honored (as an individual or family) when we start school in the fall.

B'shalom,

Rabbi Jody

Hebrew Ramot

There is an expectation that all children in Hebrew School will work on Hebrew over the summer. The long vacation from school causes many challenges when we return in fall. Please use online games/apps, materials from class, people who might know Hebrew, etc. over the summer to ensure that your child has exposure to the letters and vowels, prayers, etc. I am happy to meet with any students in the Hebrew School program who want to pass a ramah over the summer.

Please watch for information regarding registration that will be coming out in August! Please share the successes of our school with Jewish friends who may be thinking about enrolling. Also, if you have not yet completed your tuition payments for 2015-2016, now is the time to do it! Thank you for helping us with this effort.

MEMORIAL PLAQUES

Honor the loving memory of a departed family member or close friend by having his or her name inscribed on a solid brass Memorial Plaque for placement on our Memorial Wall outside of the Sanctuary. Sinai Temple affords those who have lost a loved one the opportunity to perpetuate the cherished memory of their departed by donating a Yahrzeit Memorial Plaque. Each nameplate is inscribed with the name of the departed along with the English or Hebrew date of death. The name of the departed inscribed on the Memorial Plaque is also published annually at Yom Kippur in the Sinai Temple Roll of Remembrance. Cost: $325.00 each. Contact the Temple office if you would like to order a Memorial Plaque.

USHERS WANTED

Volunteers are needed to help usher during Erev Shabbat Services. We are looking for people of any age who come to Friday night services that are willing to greet people and hand out the prayer books as people enter and then collect them at the end of the service. You need not make any ongoing commitment—usher as often or seldom as you like. Several people have already volunteered and more are always needed. Please contact Kathy in the office or Judith Siess, if you are interested in volunteering.

Adding memorials to your membership record is simple. Just call the Temple office (or email us at stoffice@sinaitemplecu.org) and let us know the name of the deceased, their relationship to you, and the secular or Hebrew date you wish to observe their yahrzeit. If you are unable to attend services and wish to reschedule the observance, please let us know a few days in advance.
