“B’Rosh Ha-Shanah y’kateivun, u’v’Yom Tzom Kippur y’chateimun—on Rosh Hashanah it is written, on the fast day of Yom Kippur, it is sealed...”

These words, found in the introduction to the U’netaneh Tokef prayer, lie at the core of the imagery associated with the High Holidays: we picture God standing as judge over all of us, ledger in hand, determining who will be recorded for life and blessing. And what becomes of those who aren’t found deserving of being inscribed in that book? Our liturgy tells us that we pass before the Divine throne as sheep pass before a shepherd, and God musters and numbers each of us and decrees our destiny. Beyond delineating “who shall live and who shall die,” according to the text of the prayer, specific fortunes and fates are prescribed.

The whole scene, as awe-inspiring as it may be in the abstract (befitting its apparent origin, or at least popularization, in medieval times), is very unsettling in our modern understanding of the world. We don’t like to think of a world in which accident, or disease, or modern scourges such as terrorism or gun violence, or the atrocities of the Shoah, are the result of God’s decree. I feel we must understand this piyyut (liturgical poem) as metaphor. I personally have come to read the U’netaneh Tokef as a message that our lives hang in the balance: not our physical, corporeal existence, but our spiritual and moral lives.

If we fulfill God’s expectations of us (and our highest expectations of ourselves), then our morality will be beyond reproach and we will feel emotionally and psychologically secure. But if a misstep (or, if you will, a “sin”) weighs heavily upon us, then we will find ourselves tossed into a tumult, much as the liturgy describes. The good news is that in the end, we have a key to a peaceful resolution. The text tells us, “U’t’shuvah, u’t’filah, u’tzedakah ma’avirin et ro’a ha-g’zera; Repentance, prayer, and charity temper God’s severe decree.” Engaging in one or more of these three tasks may assuage any “ill will” between God and us, as tradition states. But more importantly, they may help us to “get right with ourselves,” as they help us to refocus our energies, and get back onto the proper path of living.

This month, as Hebrew and Religious School are back in session, as people return from their summer travels, and as we gather together for worship, I will have many opportunities, both formally and informally, to look out over the congregation. I will smile at the many familiar faces of those who have longstanding ties to Sinai Temple.

I will acknowledge with pride those who have more recently come to our congregation, and have joined with us in continuing to build our holy community. But I will also note with great sorrow the voids within the pews—those who meant so much to Jewish life in Champaign-Urbana, who are no longer with us. In the time that I have been here (and particularly in the past few months, it seems), we have mourned the loss of so many: past presidents of our congregation, stalwarts among the leadership of our Jewish community, cherished family and friends. I do not believe that any of them “missed the mark” in any way, or that God chose to exclude them from this so-called “Book of Life and Blessing.”

Rather, I think that when we mourn the loss of a loved one, God is alongside us, striving to help us find comfort in our most difficult hours. And I think that God wraps us in the embrace of treasured memories, so that we may stand on the shoulders of these giants who left us enormous legacies, and we may face the New Year with faith, courage, and hope.

May we all enjoy a sweet and happy New Year, and may the year be good and gentle to us.

Shanah Tovah,

Rabbi Alan Cook

We had a wonderful time at our scholar-in-residence weekend with Rabbi Priesand in September. It was particularly enjoyable to come together for Shabbat dinner as a community. Throughout the coming year, Sinai Temple will hold monthly Shabbat dinners to give us an opportunity to dine with our friends and family and enjoy a leisurely Shabbat.

On Friday, November 4, we will hold our first such dinner. We will begin with an abbreviated Kabbalat Shabbat service at 5:30 PM: Rabbi Alan will tell a story in lieu of a formal sermon. At 6:30 PM, we’ll gather in the pods for Shabbat dinner and conversation. We ask for advance RSVPs to ensure that we have sufficient food for all who wish to attend. Suggested donation is only $5 per person, and you may register at <https://sinaicu.wufoo.com/forms/zfvetou01nsm5q/>.

What an exciting and busy time of the year! The religious school has started up again and the kids are creating quite a buzz on Sunday mornings! If you only come to services on Friday night, you are truly missing out on experiencing Sinai Temple “all a buzz” with excitement and children running around. Another opportunity would be to come to the Shabbat Rocks or Next Dor services. I always enjoy watching the younger kids sing and dance through the service, seeing the older kids learning parts of the service and the meaning behind it, or having the young adults leading the service with Rabbi Jody.

In the coming weeks we will come together as a community to celebrate the High Holidays. We will experience the excitement of a new year while taking time for reflection on the past and make promises to do better in the future. We will eat round challah and honey and other sweets (if you don’t know why, ask Rabbi Jody the next time you see her). While no one enjoys a day long fast, it is a good way to focus our thoughts on the past and future. Of course, who doesn’t enjoy getting together with family and friends to break the fast?

I do want to take a moment and thank all of the people who came out for the annual Labor of Love event. Sprucing up the building, inside and out, is truly a labor of love. This group of volunteers comes together to clean everything from the classrooms to the kitchen to the gift shop and the sanctuary. There is also a group who work in both the Cohen and Neuman gardens as well as a complete 360 degrees around the building. Each year I am amazed by how much work gets done in preparation for the holidays and the rest of the year.

I also want to thank all the people who came out for our “Envision the Future” event. In addition to priorities, we gathered important information about what things people would like to see updated, enhanced or replaced. This information will be invaluable as the board continues to make plans for how to move this forward. I would like to especially thank Sanford Hess, Art Siegel and Rabbi Alan for their leading of the discussion at the event.

Lastly, I hope to see all of you at services in the coming months and year. As I mentioned last month, bring your enthusiasm, your excitement and your engagement. Without your participation in the community, there will be no community.

Bulletin Submission: The deadline for the November Bulletin is October 15th. All submissions may be edited for length and content. EMAIL submissions to: Kathy Douglas stoffice@sinaitemplecu.org.

One of my favorite pieces of Jewish text is a story found in Midrash Rabba. A group of people were travelling in a boat when one of the passengers took out a drill and began to drill a hole in the bottom of the boat underneath his seat. The other travelers became distraught and cried out to him asking him why he is drilling a hole in the bottom of the boat. The man replied, “What concern is it of yours? I am drilling beneath my own seat not yours.” (Midrash Rabba Vayikra 4:6)

As we start a new year, may we all remember that as members of the Sinai Temple and Sinai Temple Religious School communities, we have a responsibility to care for others. We are all in the same boat—and while we each may choose a different way to connect to Judaism, we have an obligation to keep the boat afloat for everyone who is aboard. For a student in the religious school, this may mean attending class on a regular basis. Missing class frequently impacts the spirit of classmates and affects the execution of the lessons planned by the teacher. As a parent, it might mean volunteering in the school, running the café, bringing your family to services on Shabbat or delivering Purim baskets. As a member of the greater community, this might mean making a donation to support the school, attending grade level services to engage with the students or teaching an elective.

Fortunately, we are a school that is thriving. We have eager students and are part of a wonderful community. There are great things happening and we are eager to see how each passenger on our boat will contribute to a wonderful year.

This year's Labor of Love was hugely successful thanks to a very dedicated group of individuals. Much work was done both inside and outside. In particular both the Cohen Garden and the Neuman Garden were worked on, new bushes were planted along the front of the building, and the deteriorating wood border was removed from the west end of the building. Inside classrooms and the kitchen were cleaned and the pews in the sanctuary rearranged.

A special THANK YOU goes out to our team leaders, Tonya Bernstein, Darin Henigman, Debbie Karplus, Diane Ore and Randy Rosenbaum. And a big THANK YOU to all who volunteered your help:

Adding memorials to your membership record is simple. Just call the Temple office (or email us at stoffice@sinaitemplecu.org) and let us know the name of the deceased, their relationship to you, and the secular or Hebrew date you wish to observe their yahrzeit. If you are unable to attend services and wish to reschedule the observance, please let us know a few days in advance.
