From Rabbi Alan Cook's Desk

Recently, I reconnected via Facebook with a few old friends from elementary school. For all of the bad press that social media receives lately, it remains a wonderful tool for helping maintain connections over long distances. In this case, the people whom I “friended” were members of my class at Beth Shalom Day School, a small

Jewish day school in Hollywood, Florida, that I attended from fourth through eighth grade.

The school itself no longer exists; the congregation at which it was housed was a victim of demographic shifts in the neighborhood and was forced to close its doors in the mid-1990s. I attended a different high school than most of my classmates, and my family moved from Florida in 1988. Yet here I was, chatting with people I hadn’t seen in more than three decades. It sent me briefly down the road of nostalgia.

I looked back through a small handful of pictures, and our small, self-published “yearbook.” I recalled our class trip to Washington, D.C. and was amused to discover that in the yearbook, some of my classmates had already predicted that I would become a rabbi. Most stunningly, I realized that our eighth grade graduation took place thirty-five years ago! I still recall portions of the graduation recitation that the teachers organized for my classmates and I to perform as part of the ceremony. I’m not certain if it was an original composition, or adapted from another source, but the title was “Stand and Be Counted.” In it, we reminded ourselves—and professed to our families and our community—that we had an obligation to be responsible citizens, striving toward justice and integrity.

There were about twenty of us in that eighth grade class. Those with whom I’ve kept in touch over the years, and those with whom I’ve recently renewed correspondence, have indeed done remarkable things in their personal and professional lives that have allowed them to “stand and be counted.” We have become teachers, guidance counselors, doctors and nurses, attorneys, and law enforcement personnel. We have been leaders in social service agencies, advocacy groups, Jewish Federations, and congregations. I’m sure none of us imagined at thirteen or fourteen years old quite what lay in store for each of our lives. We may not even have imagined that the words we recited during the ceremony would have lasting resonance beyond that evening. But that tacit vow we made to “stand and be counted” reverberates amongst our own children, the communities in which we live and work, and each of our ever-widening circles of connection.

Here at Sinai Temple, as graduation season has recently passed, we are very proud of all of our students. Some are progressing to significant new milestones in their academic careers; others are celebrating advancements within their current school settings. We salute each of you, and hope that you, too will make choices and seek out opportunities that allow you to “stand and be counted.” We pray that wherever your studies may lead you, you will always remember this loving community that stands by to offer support if ever the challenges of the world seem daunting, and to rejoice with you as you soar to new heights. We wish each of our students, no matter what point they find themselves at within their academic careers, a hearty mazal tov! May you always progress from strength to strength.

L’Shalom,

Rabbi Alan Cook

Congratulations to Jacob Rosenbaum, who recently was promoted to the rank of Eagle Scout. We are grateful to Jake for his hard work in constructing our beautiful playground, which he did as his Eagle Scout project.

From President Jacob Sosnoff

Writing my first bulletin letter as president of Sinai is deceptively harder than I imagined. To be honest, I was caught off guard with the difficulty. As a professor at the University I write quite frequently. But this letter is unique. It is something entirely different. I am writing to my fellow Jews and congregants—people and families who have built this wonderful congregation. How could I convey how special and wonderful Sinai Temple is? How am I going to communicate next steps to the congregation that has accomplished so much?

Faced with this difficulty, I did some research. I read over past bulletins and started to compile themes and stylistic pointers. I reached out for guidance from my family and lay leaders. Needless to say I received great advice. My wonderful wife poured me a glass of wine and reminded me to breathe and assured me it would be ok. My mother told me she loved me and was confident that I would do a good job while my father laughed and wished me good luck. My 14-year-old son suggested that I “use big font – so you have to write less”! The advice from others was slightly more pragmatic like the suggestion to “aim for 6 paragraphs; the first will be an introduction and the last will be a conclusion and the middle can fill in with recent events”. Others suggested to “just tell the congregation what you are planning to accomplish as president”. This process of asking for guidance made me keenly aware of how supportive the congregation is. If you have any insights on how I should approach this bulletin or how the temple can do better feel free to contact me. (The most efficient way to reach me is via email : president@sinaitemplecu.org).

Another example of the supportive congregation is Julia Robinson and Mitch Harris’ tenure on the board of trustees. We owe a debt for their contributions over the years. I, along with the board, will miss their insights. I also need to make a special note of appreciation to Gary Bernstein who is completing his term as past-president. Over the last six years, Gary has set the foundation for several large and ongoing projects including the sanctuary renovation project, re-imaging the building fund, and played an important role in hiring both Rabbi Alan and Rabbi Jody. He also happens to be a Temple by-law expert and is always willing to offer a helping hand. We are thankful for his commitment to the Temple and are appreciative of the strong foundation he has laid. I am thrilled to have Julia Rietz as Vice President, Bart Greenberger continuing as financial secretary, and Shari Fox, Debbie Levin Fliflet, and Bill Egberman join as trustees. I am also excited to have Dan Kopolow continue on as a board trustee. I have learned many lessons in my time on the board and perhaps the most important is that a good board makes the officers look good! I am looking forward to working with them and the rest of the board as we continue to thrive as a temple.

How do I know that the temple is thriving? As I am writing this it is a few days past Yom Ha’Atzma’ut (Israel’s Independence), that Sinai sponsored in partnership with CUJF and Chabbad. And next to me on my arm chair is “Tunnel, Smuggle, Collect: A Holocaust Boy” by Jeffery Gingold, who was the speaker at Yom Hashoah observance. Just prior to that, there was last day of religious school BBQ and celebration. We just had a traditional minyan Shabbat service, and we have a Bar Mitzvah next weekend. Not to mention the annual meeting and Shavuot celebration on May 19th. I failed to mention the weekly Friday night services including the Bnai Mitzvah graduation service, first Friday feast, the spa day fundraiser, and the Zahav fundraising dinner. There is a good chance that this list is not exhaustive and there were events that I mistakenly omitted. I hope you were able to attend some if not all of these offerings. If there is something you wish the temple offered—again feel free to reach out to me and let me know.

Although we are thriving, we are facing some challenges. All of these wonderful events place strain on our building infrastructure. Indeed, a significant portion of our budget this past year was dedicated to repairs and upkeep of our aging building. This placed undue strain on our building fund. It is our hope that the renovation will alleviate some of these building maintenance costs as well as rejuvenate our building fund reserves. We are also faced with new security challenges. We are confronted with providing a welcoming and safe Jewish environment. Not only does balancing a welcoming and a secure environment require difficult decisions, but it also requires significant infrastructure upgrades. My goal is to maintain the welcoming nature of the temple while instituting cost effective security measures. The board has proposed (it was voted on at the annual meeting) establishing a security fund and instituting a security fee to offset the cost of necessary security upgrades. There are most likely other challenges and solutions that are not currently apparent. Any insights on how to solve these challenges—feel free to share.

From the Board

The next few months are relatively quiet at the temple. There is no religious school over the summer and both Rabbi Alan and Rabbi Jody will be working at OSRUI—our URJ camp over the summer. A good number of our children head off to various Jewish camps as well—including my 8 year old son for the first time. (As of now I have been elected to be head carpool driver and schlepper for him and a few of his camp bound friends). The renovation committee will be in full swing as the renovation moves ahead. The green team is planning on planting a butterfly garden in the Cohen garden.

Well for those that are counting this is my 8th paragraph—apparently I wrote a little more than necessary, and I managed to not even use excessively large font. I hope you will forgive me—this is my first bulletin after all. I look forward to working with you as we continue to have Sinai thrive.

Cheers,

Jake Sosnoff

SINAI TEMPLE BOARD MEETING MAY 2019

- ✧ Rabbi Alan discussed the festival calendar in his D'Var Torah. A central question concerns “what are the fixed times that you can count on year after year?” While it is important to maintain tradition and continuity, he noted that we also need to strive to make the liturgy new and fresh. Keeping a balance between innovation and tradition is a key challenge.
- ✧ Landau|Zinder will return to Champaign-Urbana and our Temple community on May 26, 2019. There will be planned interactions with community members of the Temple and different focus groups. This is an excellent opportunity for Sinai members to meet with the architects and discuss ideas for the upcoming renovation. The next planned visit of the architects will take place May 26, 2019.
- ✧ The Board discussed some options for Temple renovations and ongoing concerns about safety and security while maintaining an open, inviting atmosphere for our community.

JUNE FIRST FRIDAY

Please join us for our final First Friday Feast before we head off for the summer! We'll begin at 5:30 PM on Friday, June 7th with a special early Shabbat service featuring our "house band," Shir Electricity. Rabbi Alan will tell a story.

Following the service, we will gather for a delicious meal, and a chance to visit with our Sinai Temple friends. Weather permitting, we will have the opportunity to eat outside and enjoy playing on our playground. There's even a special dessert in store!

Please RSVP if you plan to attend, no later than Wednesday evening, June 5th. This ensures that we purchase and prepare an appropriate amount of food. RSVP at <https://sinaicu.wufoo.com/forms/p1brkyrb1gefjt5/>.

If you are able to assist Rabbi Alan in preparing food or setting up for the meal either on Thursday afternoon, June 6th or Friday morning June 7th, please email Rabbi Alan rabbialan@sinaitempecu.org.

Foundation for the Future

The SRC continued to meet with our Architects through April and May. Many ideas and inputs were provided, including some ideas from Focus Groups of members that resonated with everyone. One of the most important areas of discussions has been security improvements to the entrances. Since the Board expanded the Architect's work to include a Master Plan of the whole building, entrances on both the South (by the Library) and West (by the offices) are being reviewed. In the Sanctuary, the SRC considered many configurations for the Bimah and seating, as well as ways to make better use of the space in the Pods. The SRC also looked at options for the ceiling and lighting, trying to find solutions that achieved some of our goals for better visibility, sound, and air circulation without giving up too much ceiling height. There will be more discussions, and meetings over the Summer, and we hope to complete Concept Designs in the next few months.

SINAI TEMPLE HOSTS SOLAR POWER HOUR 6:30–7:30 PM June 13, 2019

Join us June 13 when Sinai Temple hosts a Solar Power Hour and learn about Solar Power. Andy Robinson from the Midwest Renewable Energy Association will make the presentation, which is free of charge and open to the entire community. Those who attend will learn the basics of solar, go through some examples of the costs of solar, and learn about the Solar Urbana Champaign program, now in its fourth year.

The Solar Urbana Champaign program helps bring down the costs for households and small businesses to add solar panels to their properties. You can read more about this program, which is co-sponsored by the City of Urbana, Prairie Rivers Network, and the Midwest Renewable Energy Association, at <https://www.growsolar.org/solar-urbana-champaign/>.

Please attend and bring your neighbors and friends from the community. There is no need to RSVP but if you have questions please get in touch with Art Siegel at building@sinaitemplecu.org.

Congratulations

Come celebrate with us!

Elise Ionin

Elise Oikhberg Ionin will be called to the Torah as a Bat Mitzvah on June 1, 2019. Elise is the daughter of Tania Ionin and Timur Oikhberg, and the older sister of Ruth. She is very grateful to her tutor Dana Cohen and to all her teachers at Sinai for helping her prepare for this day.

Elise is in seventh grade at Campus Middle School for Girls. She plays the piano and the flute, and enjoys being part of the Maccabee Flats at Sinai. She likes reading, writing and learning languages. Elise is bilingual in Russian and English and focused on bilingualism for her Bat Mitzvah project. She visited the Montessori School of Champaign-Urbana and talked to the elementary school children about the importance of language learning and about the writing systems of different languages. Elise also loves being with her friends. We are looking forward to celebrating Elise's Bat Mitzvah with you.

CONGRATULATIONS to all of our students, including our graduating high school seniors.

A number of our students were recently honored at Centennial High School's graduation ceremony with the following awards: Illinois State Scholars: Bryn Gerwin, Isaac Soloveychik, Jacob Rosenbaum, Emma Glezer. Highest Scholastic Honors: Bryn Gerwin. Big Twelve Conference Academic Award: Emma Glezer. Service to French Award: Bryn Gerwin, Isaac Soloveychik. Center for Translation: UIUC Recognition (tri-lingual): Isaac Soloveychik. Interact Distinguished Members: Isaac Soloveychik.

The Green Team

BRINGS THE GREEN TO SINAI TEMPLE

In May, Green Team members Holly Rosencranz, Warren Lavey, and Alice Berkson planted an area of the Neuman Garden with pollinator-friendly plants. Our Green Team founder Matt Entin provided a donation toward one of our projects before he left the community early this year, and we're pleased to have his idea literally growing along with other Green Team activities.

Stop by the pollinator area this summer and fall to see what kind of insects it attracts -- bees, butterflies, moths, and other insects are critical to our food supply and human survival. You can find more information, and learn out how easy it is to incorporate pollinator plants into even a small space at <https://web.extension.illinois.edu/cfiv/pollinators/>.

The Green Team welcomes new members as we plan for summer and fall activities. If you have an idea for a project and would like to join in please contact Alice Berkson at berksonalice@gmail.com.
